World Bank Report Regarding PDS

2831. SHRIMATI JAYAPRADA NAHATA:
SHRI AMAR SINGH:

Will the Minister of FOOD AND CONSUMER AFFAIRS be pleased to state:

(a) whether Government's attention has been drawn to the World Bank report on the working of anti-poverty programmes in India which shows that to reach one rupee by way of benefit to the poor, Government have to spend Rs. 7 on the Public Distribution System;

(b) if so, What is Government's reaction in regard thereto; and

(c) how much financial aid Government had received from the World Bank for anti-poverty programmes during the last five years, alongwith the total expenditure incurred thereon?

THE MINISTER OF STATE IN THE MINISTRY OF FOOD AND CONSUMER AFFAIRS (SHRI SATYAPAL SINGH YADAV): (a) It has been reported in World Bank Discussion Paper No. 380 brought out in 1997 on India's Public Distribution System (PDS) that the cost per Re. 1 of income transfer to the poor was exorbitant particularly for the Andhra Pradesh rice subsidy scheme. The high cost of income transfer was due to weak targeting. The welfare gains to the poor can be enhanced by fine targeting.

(b) The proposal to exclude the affluent section of the society from access to PDS was discussed in the Conference of Chief Ministers' held on Basic Minimum Services (BMS) held during 4-5 July, 1996. The Conference, however felt that as a large section of the population who may be above the poverty line (APL) are also at present getting the benefit of the PDS, suitable measures should be taken to ensure availability of essential commodities at reasonable prices to this section. The general consensus in the Conference of Chief Ministers held on 30.9.1997 to review implementation of Targeted Public Distribution System (TPDS) was that there, should be no reduction in the allocation to APL families. It has not been possible to exclude the non-poor from PDS because of the lack of consensus on this issue.

(c) As far as the PDS and anti-poverty schemes like the wage employment programmes are concerned, no assistance has been received from the World Bank during the past five years.
